Climate Change Research Symposium

An interdisciplinary symposium to prompt discussion among faculty members and students conducting research on climate change at the University of Oregon.

May 23 2012–Climate Change Research Symposium

Ford Lecture Hall, Jordan Schnitzer Museum of Art, 1430 Johnson Lane

Climate change is a multifaceted global crisis. Professors and students in the humanities, natural sciences, and social sciences examine different facets of this important global challenge. The UO Climate Change Research Symposium brings together individuals whose problem-driven research transcends traditional disciplinary boundaries. The sharing of perspectives and exchange of ideas will produce a lasting dialogue that will enrich the depth of academic discourse at the University of Oregon.
